

A NATIONAL LEADERSHIP NETWORK DRIVING POSITIVE LOCAL CHANGE

WHAT IS THE PROGRAM ABOUT?

Regional Australian communities are no strangers to the complex work of transition and innovation when disruption and new opportunities are presented. The Leading Australian Resilient Communities (LARC) program is about supporting Australia's regional communities to meet challenges and collectively drive the positive changes they want to see.

WHO IS BEHIND IT?

The combined resources and expertise of the Australian Rural Leadership Foundation (ARLF), Regional Australia Institute and leadership development partners: Leadership Victoria, Leadership WA, Leaders Institute of South Australia and Tasmanian Leaders represents a unique consortium of expertise in developing leadership in regional and rural Australia.

"I LEARNT HOW TO LEAD FROM BEHIND AND CAME TO REALISE THAT THE GREATEST QUALITY OF A LEADER IS THE ABILITY TO ALLOW OTHERS TO DEVELOP AND USE THEIR SKILLS."

Ash Fraser
ARLF program graduate

The formal announcement of the LARC Program has just been released. (See attached Media Release and LARC Overview), Leadership WA have also advised that a webpage is now live for people to register interest in the Program (link below).

More information regarding applications opening, timing and program content will be provided.

According to the attached LARC Overview Flyer, the program will deliver a combination of community forums focused on resilience and response to change; place-based multi-day leadership sessions to identify local challenges, opportunities and what underpins them; as well as webinars; group coaching and support for practical, community-led projects. There is no cost to participate.

Dates and locations are still being decided for Future Forums and the Leadership Program.
